To Whom It May Concern:

I am writing this letter in recommendation of Jayce Riegling. Jayce is an organized, creative problem-solver. This in combination with his level of maturity and engaging personality helps him navigate easily between different peer and adult social groups.

I have known Jayce for one year and had the pleasure of working with him in a variety of roles and witnessed his adaptability, maturity and commitment level to his goals and toward others.

Jayce chooses to be a role model for his peers and younger students. One example of this is his willingness to not only help but also tutor students in various subjects and across ability levels. Jayce worked closely with me, the teacher, at Lakeland Alternative School to tutor many at-risk students and help them begin earning high school credits. His efforts have given many of these students' confidence and improved self-esteem, which have bolstered their perception about their ability to succeed. In some of these students, this is a feat that no other instructor has been able to achieve in four or more years.

I highly recommend Jayce, he is not only an excellent student, but more importantly, he is a mature young man with morals, character, a willingness to help others.

Sincerely,

Amanda "Amy" Garl
